Our Farmers go to Extremes.

The people all run to cows; so I wish to put in a word for the ox, that noble animal for whom the Creater "careth," and which in the earlier history of our world took a high rank. The Oriental husbandman builth his hopes on the labors of the ox. To his tolls the human race of every country have been largely indebted; but in these days people have been bending all their energies to butter and cheese, straining after what they judge to be the best cows to the almost entire exclusion of that blood essential for the best oxen.

I am not sure that this is wise to the extent to which farmers have carried it. Americans are prone to extremes. If one man is known to get a large price for a cow, or makes her uncommonly profitable outside the shad, and has no one

Briefly stated, and without attempt to trace the minor periods in the making of these horsebacks, we will have at least three general epochs. First,—The period of the ancient gravel deposit. This was somewhat arched, irregular in outline, often a succession of more or less closely connected hillocks rather than a continuous ridge. In the district above named the prevailing color of these oldest of the gravels is grayish and blueish, caused perhaps by the disappearance of the iron-baring fragments. Many of these old gravel-ridges have been covered by later deposits, so that no ridge appears in the surface, and we only know of their existence by seeing them where a stream or other excavation reveals them.

Second,—There then came a time when the clay was deposited. Sometimes the clay is fluely stratified, in other places it was thrown down pell-mell, with pebbles and boulders. The presence of marine fosals in some of these clays points directly to a period of submersion in the seas. For geological purposes the clay is the most important formation in the horseback.

Third,—We lastly have a period when the surface sands and gravels were deposited, Their prevailing color, in this district, is reddish, yellowish or brownish. Many of the ancient ridges were buried out of sight, where a period were buried out of sight, there are the minor period of submersion in the seas. Notwithstanding Professor Wayland draws a marked distinction between the criminal tramp and the mere beggar in respect to character, he shows that the tendency of all vagrant mendicants is to crime and prescribes the same general treatmen for all. He would have officers appointed in districts of proper size who shall be empowered to hire buildings suitable for the confinement and employment of vagrants, the managers to open accounts with all the prisoners, charging them with board and other necessary expenses, and crediting them with a fair compensation for the work performed by them, and, at the end of the term for which they have been sentenced, pay them whatever balance may be found their due. In this State, our jail workshops would be just the place for putting such a plan in operation. From Plevna there is no further intelligence, although the Roumanians have pushed their saps to within a few yards of the counterscarp of the second redoubt on the Gravitza ridge. No accounts come which indicate that the position of Osman Pacha has been invested or closely blockaded. On the contrary the army of Chefket Pasha is at Orchanie to aid in the defence, and is reported reinforced by a portion of battalions lately occupied in Skipka Pass.

Diziness, Languor, Oppression of Food, Heart-burs, Flathlence, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Torpid Liver, &c. &c.
Females who cannot endure strong purgatives find these Lozenges, admirably suited to the many com-plaints incident to their sex, by restoring nature and preventing periodical pains and obstructions. They are also just the thing for children suffering with worms, being a sure cure, and as agreeable to take as the must pleasant confection.

Travellers find the Lozenges just what they need, as they are so compact and incolorous that they may be carried in the vest pocket, and as an aperient or laxative they are unequied.
